Congress Helps Ranchers and Farmers Protect Land

New Law Improves Tax Benefits of Conservation Easements

Congress recently passed a law to enhance the tax benefits of protecting your land by donating a voluntary conservation agreement. If you own land with important natural or historic resources, donating a voluntary conservation agreement can be one of the smartest ways to conserve the land you love and protect Oregon’s natural heritage, while maintaining your private property rights and possibly realizing significant federal tax benefits.

These new incentives make it easier for average Americans, including working family farmers and ranchers, to donate land. The legislation allows:

- A conservation easement donor to deduct up to 50% of their adjusted gross income in any year
- Qualifying farmers and ranchers to deduct up to 100% of their adjusted gross income
- Donors to carry over deductions for their contribution for as many as 15 years

These changes allow many modest income landowners to deduct much more than they could under the old rules, bringing increased fairness to the tax code.

A conservation easement is a legal agreement between a landowner and a nonprofit land trust or government agency that permanently limits uses of the land in order to protect important conservation values. It allows you to continue to own and use your land and to sell it or pass it on to heirs.

When you enter into a conservation easement with a land trust, you give up some continued on page 2
Community Event
May 19, 2007

Watch our website and mailings for details on our May 19 Hedges Creek Community Event that will feature music, food, arts/crafts, and activities for children as an introduction to the marsh and kick off of TWC’s and the City’s partnership to restore the marsh.

Happy New Year!

Our donors, volunteers, board, staff and partners are the foundation of TWC’s success. We appreciate the diverse of ways the community supports our mission and work. Thanks to all of you. We look forward to continuing to work with all of you and others to conserve Oregon’s Greatest Wetlands.

of the rights associated with the land. For example, you might give up the right to subdivide your land or build additional houses. The land trust is responsible for making sure the terms of the agreement are followed.

Conservation easements vary widely. An agreement to protect rare wildlife habitat might prohibit any development, for example, while one on a farm might allow continued farming and the building of additional agricultural structures. An easement may apply to just a portion of the property, and need not require public access.

A conservation donation requires not only a willing donor, but a qualified conservation organization to accept the donation. That organization needs to be able to show that the donation closely fits its particular charitable mission. The Wetlands Conservancy will only accept donations that fit our mission.

A conservation easement can help a landowner pass land on intact to the next generation. By limiting the land’s development potential, the agreement lowers its market value, which in turn lowers estate tax. Whether the agreement is donated during life or by will, it can make a critical difference in the heirs’ ability to keep the land intact.

If a conservation easement benefits the public by permanently protecting important conservation resources and meets other federal tax code requirements, it can qualify as a tax-deductible charitable donation. The amount of the donation is the difference between the land’s value with the agreement and its value without the agreement.

To qualify as a charitable donation, a conservation easement must be permanent. Landowners should get professional financial planning and legal advice before making such a major donation.

To learn more about conservation easements, contact TWC, your local land trust, your tax or real estate advisor or the Land Trust Alliance website at www.lta.org.

TWC Partners Forges New Partnership with Pacific Forest Trust

TWC will begin a new partnership with Pacific Forest Trust to manage forest, wetland and estuarine habitats in the McCaffrey and Poole Sloughs of the Central Coast. The Pacific Forest Trust is the only conservation group in the nation solely committed to alleviating the threat to the integrity and productivity of America’s private forests with a comprehensive strategy to Retain, Sustain and Gain. Since 1993, the Pacific Forest Trust has been working to preserve, enhance and restore America’s vast and vital private forests – and safeguard their many public benefits – through education, innovation and collaboration.
Jim Rapp Returns to TWC

Jim Rapp is Portland Marketing Manager for the Environment and Resource Management group of HDR, Inc. He was previously Executive Director of the non-profit For the Sake of the Salmon, and a city manager and planner in Oregon, Alaska and Alberta. Jim served as Board Vice President of TWC in the mid-1990's.

Jim Labbe has stepped down off of the board but will continue to volunteer with TWC. Thanks to Jim and welcome to Jim Rapp.

TWC Board Elects New Officers

TWC Board elected Geoff Huntington president, Paul Agrimis Vice President, Ed Casey Jr. Secretary, and Anne Eakin Treasurer. Marlene Huntsinger past president remains as a board director.

TWC Hires Coastal Steward and New Urban Lands Steward

Paul Engelmeyer, of Yachats Oregon, is TWC's first coastal steward. Paul has been the Director of the Audubon's Ten Mile Creek Sanctuary since 1991. Paul has worked with the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife and the Siuslaw National Forest on the development of a basin-wide restoration plan for the Ten Mile Creek Watershed. He is a respected voice on Pacific Northwest conservation issues and provides valuable information to state and regional fish and wildlife commissions. He was on the National Marine Fisheries Service Science Review Team for the designation of Essential Fish Habitat.

Jennifer Schley and Chris Runyard have replaced Marshall Johnson, who moved to Maryland. Jennifer worked for TWC as an AmeriCorps volunteer for TWC and also worked on invasive plant management projects with Marshall. Jennifer and Portland Community College student Joshua R oach are in charge of restoration and management at Central Hedges Creek, Apache Bluff, Cedar Mill, Hart Wetland and Gresham Meadowlands. Chris has worked as a Friends of Trees crew leader and planter for 11 years, and has led the Tsunami Crew, a dedicated team of crew leaders restoring the Three Creeks watershed in Clackamas County, for five years. As a pilot for United Airlines, he used to see "forest destruction, wetland degradation, sprawl, and oil slicks in the middle of the ocean." Now his priorities are "salmon, air, trees, and the community that surrounds them." Chris is doing the Kellogg Creek Knotweed project and managing the Hearthwood and Minthorn Springs Preserved Clackamas County.

Colin Macdonald is doing outreach for our May 19 Hedges Creek event. Colin is a graduate of the University of Oregon in Family and Human Services and Nonprofit Business Administration. As native Oregonian born and raised in Cedar Mill, he has traveled extensively around Oregon. He shares a passion for the outdoors and strives to preserve and restore the abundance of natural resources we have all come to enjoy. Check our website for opportunities to meet and work with our new stewardship team.

Meyer Memorial Trust Grant Supports TWC Expansion

A three-year $190,000 grant from the Meyer Memorial Trust will support expansion of staff capacity as we implement Oregon’s Greatest Wetlands. The grant funds will be used to hire a chief operating officer and coastal steward and redesign our website and logo.

The Wetlands Conservancy

Tualatin has experienced significant growth in the past 30 years transforming it from an agricultural-based economy in 1970 with 750 residents to a bustling suburban community with a mix of residential, commercial business and manufacturing land uses. Between 1970 and 2000, Tualatin’s population has grown over 3,000 percent, and since the year 2000 has increased nearly 11%.

By soliciting the opinions and visions of the community, The Tualatin City Council hopes to be more effective and proactive in dealing with the future and what it might bring, and be in a better position to capture opportunities.

In February 2006, the City of Tualatin began a community-wide visioning process, called Tualatin Tomorrow. Through involvement with the community, the city plans to develop a Vision Statement that identifies what Tualatin’s community wants Tualatin to be. This “statement for the future” will help to guide the Tualatin Tomorrow process in identifying the steps towards achieving the vision, and will also be used to guide Tualatin’s future planning efforts.

The Tualatin City Council sees a community effort to restore and enhance Hedges Creek Marsh as the perfect opportunity to have the marsh be one of the centerpieces and landscape features of the City of Tualatin Community Visioning. Returning to our roots, Central Hedges Creek Marsh in Tualatin is one of our 2007 priority areas. Hedges Creek Marsh was the birthplace of The Wetlands Conservancy in 1982 when a committed community of citizens, students, and business people joined together to protect this unique greenspace during the City of Tualatin’s first urban renewal planning process. Over the next five years TWC will work with the city of Tualatin and Tualatin residents, schools and businesses to restore and enhance the 57-acre Hedges Creek Marsh.

The City of Tualatin is still seeking input on important community resources and vision. Please take a few minutes and visit their website: www.tualatintomorrow.org/stakeholders.html and take the Picture Tualatin and Tualatin Tomorrow Issues Survey. The more voices they hear about conservation and restoration of wetlands, waterways and natural areas, the more likely it will become a foundation of future plans.

Give More for Less with the Pension Protection Act of 2006

In addition to the improved conservation tax incentives, the Pension Protection Act of 2006 also included a new, limited-time opportunity for IRA donors who may be considering making a charitable contribution to a land trust or other charitable organization.

Give more for less: For 2006 and 2007 only, Americans over age 70 1/2 will no longer pay federal income tax on individual retirement account (IRA) funds, if they are given directly to qualified charities, such as land trusts – up to $100,000 per person, per year.

How it works: Retroactive to January 1, 2006 and by December 31, 2006, you can make a gift of up to $100,000 by transferring IRA assets directly to the chosen charity. Between January 1 and December 31, 2007, you may transfer an additional $100,000. You will not receive an additional charitable deduction because the distribution is not taxable.

Some restrictions apply: Such transfers cannot be used for donor-advised funds or private foundations. You can use these funds to establish a permanent endowment to benefit the charity of your choice.

Is this right for me? If you answer “yes” to any of the following questions, you may want to consider taking advantage of this short-term opportunity. Consult your estate planning professionals and your tax advisors.

- Are you older than 70 1/2 and are you planning to leave a charitable legacy through your estate plan?
- Have you designated your favorite charity as beneficiary of retirement assets?
- Do your retirement savings exceed your expected needs?
- Are you subject to a charitable deduction limitation because you give more than 50 percent of your income to charity?
- Do you take the minimum distributions from your IRA only because you must?
- Do taking greater distributions from your retirement plans affect the amount of your Social Security benefits that are taxed?
- Do you have adjusted gross income above $150,500 ($75,250 for married filing separately), which causes a phase-out of itemized deductions and exemptions?

Support TWC Through Workplace Giving

The Wetlands Conservancy is a member of Earth Share, a nationwide network of America’s leading nonprofit environmental and conservation organizations, that works to promote charitable giving through workplace giving campaigns. The Conservancy participates in several workplace charity campaigns including the Combined Federal Campaign, state employee campaigns and several corporate campaigns.

By contributing to The Wetlands Conservancy through Earth Share, you may pledge a specified amount from each paycheck to be automatically deducted.

Your donation will have an immediate impact in helping us conserve Oregon’s Greatest Wetlands.

Some ESO R companies match their employees’ ESO R donations 100%. Please check www.wetlandsconservancy.org for a list of those companies. If your company is listed you can double your contribution to The Wetlands Conservancy and help conserve more of Oregon’s Greatest wetlands.

Spread the word about The Wetlands Conservancy to your work mates.
